Encountering Life Issues with Soul Wisdom

SPIRITUAL VISION=THE DOORWAY HOME

If you were in a confined cell and longed to be set free, one of your first priorities would be to identify which blocks of cement contained the door. Hammering away at the walls, pondering why, pouting or screaming your head off wouldn't do you much good, but prying effectively and skillfully at the opening may indeed produce results. That is what Spiritual Vision is, and I capitalize it because it is that important. Spiritual Vision is perceiving through the lens of your spirit, or your highest self, instead of through the manifest eyes of the material world. It is registering every being, experience and emotion from its value as a spirit and not from the drama that you believe surrounds it. It is perceiving others as they truly are, divine beings of radiant light, power and extreme openness and love and not as the roles they play in the manifest world, which are mostly small and ineffective. And, it is the doorway Home.

It is the only way to diminish the ego or manifest world in weight and increase the presence, value and validity of the greater, miraculous spirit world. Once you recognize that this greater You exists, you want more of it. You don't just want fleeting glimpses of a better You, you want the daily wisdom and perspective it offers so gracefully and effortlessly. You want the peace and calmness that can instantly illuminate a solution to any disaster. You want the swelling of love that brings everyone into your own personal community of loved ones. You want that feeling of being God, of infinite potential and expansive possibilities. Why would you be satisfied with anything less?

Imagine this: every living being ~ from rock, tree, toad, flower, dog to human ~ has a brilliant light being that is its core self. And we just walk right by them, believing they are the rock or toad they are expressing. You also have a radiant light being that is your core. When was the last time you looked at it for inspiration, remembered it was there, asked for guidance, smiled at it or even thanked it for the divine qualities that it offers to instill in you? What if you could see with these eyes how magnanimous every living being genuinely is? Then you would believe, the only problem is that these physical eyes were built to see only in the manifest world. Everything you see with these eyeballs supports the physical or manifest world, everything. That means these eyes cannot show you the divine selves of all that you walk by. You have to see with your heart, or with the inner eye. When you are daydreaming, what are you seeing? You see in full color what is not in front of you, but exists very well in your mind. It is like that. The only difference is that when you choose to see with Spiritual Vision, you are asking to be shown. You are not generating or instigating the movie in your head. You are being open and available to receiving the wisdom and truth of the higher spirit realm and the results are mind-boggling!

You don't go from here to there. There is no there, there is only a there in perception, so you simply shift your perception. You begin to see what mass consciousness is not validating, yet you know must be there. Where is the us that continues to exist after our bodies expire? Where is the us that was created by a divine creator; unlimited by time, space or matter, eternal, immortal, loving, peaceful, and powerful beyond measure? Why can't we witness them? Because you can only serve one master. Either you give it all to the ego king, or to the spirit king. As you begin to shift allegiances, you start chiseling away at the door to the cell that keeps you limited and small. Soon, as you begin to locate and connect with this divine you that was there all along you just didn't know it, you realize there actually IS no door. You only imagined it was there, you have always been free, you just didn't remember.

But it takes effort. It requires a commitment to stop believing the roles people insist that they are. It requires that you look beyond what others say each and every time you communicate with them. It means you close your eyes time and again and ask to see your own Divine Self and the Divine Self of the ones you struggle with and actually allow your mind to be expansive enough to try and contain these incredibly brilliant and loving beings. It will transform you, truly~ out of this world!

SEEKING SEVERAL REMAINING PERSONS!

A program of Spiritual Vision-Core Belief Restructuring, part of the Consciousness Studies Program of the Institute of Progressive Therapies, gets underway Sept 1 as a group of committed individuals begin an 18-month program (mostly distance learning) seeking their greatest potential. The program is aimed at opening that doorway to the wisdom of the spirit, to learn specific tools in mind-discipline and focus, remap the mind with greater possibilities and unlock God-given gifts, transforming the world and the lives of those living beings who want to go Home. There are still a few slots left, if this calls you, contact Julie at (208)263-1448 or julie@jrhutslar.com. Check out the catalog at www.InstituteOfProgressiveTherapies.com

TODAY'S TOOL

SEEING BEYOND THE ROLES

One excellent way to begin to see through the illusion, or see with your spiritual eyesight, is to recognize and identify the roles people are playing. Instead of knowing people through the actor they play, simply make note of the role they have chosen. This gives you the trigger to remember they are much more, and it helps you not get so wrapped up in the emotional components of that role.

For example, a Jewish Mother-in-law can feel overbearing when you get sucked into the drama or a Maiden in Distress can make you feel powerless or angry when you think that is who they are. What about some roles that are easy to identify? Cowboy, Joker, Magician, Salesman, Teacher, Victim, Criminal, Innocent, Deaf Mute or Outdoor Enthusiast are only a few, but there are as many roles as there are dramas, or comedies or action thrillers. Challenge yourself to identify the roles of those around you so that you can begin to see it is only a mask, and NOT who they genuinely are! Only then can you start to see through the well-worn mask!

“When intention and imagination are fused, anything is possible. We can create miracles, but first we must imagine them.”

“Our world is a desperate place right now...By healing yourself, you can become a major catalyst for changing the world.”
